SafeWorks Illinois Director of Industrial Rehabilitation Earns Certified Ergonomic Evaluator Specialist (CEES) Designation

[CHAMPAIGN, IL – September 10, 2010] Mark Mammen of SafeWorks Illinois completed the Certified Ergonomic Evaluation Specialist (CEES) Program through Matheson in July 2010. The CEES designation signifies the successful completion of one of the most rigorous ergonomic evaluation training programs currently available. The certification establishes one's competent ability to plan, administer and report ergonomic evaluations in real-life fieldwork conditions.

The Matheson System is an affiliation of allied health and safety professionals who approach ergonomic evaluation, work capacity evaluation and rehabilitation from a common philosophy.

Mark Mammen has been the director of industrial rehabilitation at SafeWorks Illinois for 10 years providing comprehensive occupational health services and return-to-work programs aimed at creating safe, drug-free businesses and industries. "Our mission at SafeWorks is to engineer healthy companies," said Mammen. "It is very important to me to provide solutions to companies by evaluating their workplace for ergonomic issues. With this idea in mind, we can prevent injuries, in addition to the work we do to rehabilitate and return employees to work. This certification program shared some of the latest techniques and procedures to help me continue to offer employers objective reports on the workplace environment."
