SafeWorks Illinois™ Medical Assistant Receives Two Certifications

[CHAMPAIGN, IL – November 22, 2010] SafeWorks Illinois™ Medical Assistant Vanessa Powell recently received certification as a Medical Review Assistant (MRO-A) and a Certified Professional Collector Trainer (CPCT) designation through the DATIA (Drug & Alcohol Testing Industry Association) Collection Certification Program.

This certification program provides collection personnel the training to become proficient in Department of Transportation (DOT) and federal urine specimen collections for drug testing in the workplace. "SafeWorks Illinois believes in the advancement and education of its staff to provide the best possible service for its clients," said Dr. David Fletcher, President and Owner, SafeWorks Illinois. "With DOT regulation changes continuing change, it is important we stay ahead of new regulation implementations and we are always well-prepared to educate our clients in an expedient manner."

Powell's certifications as a MRO-A and CPCT allow her to offer SafeWorks Illinois clients the training they need to provide drug testing in the workplace compliant with DOT and federal regulations.

SafeWorks Illinois engineers healthy companies by providing comprehensive occupational health services and return-to-work programs; an important part of these services is creating safe, drug-free businesses and industries. Through advanced programs and certifications, SafeWorks Illinois aims to ensure that collections are performed in a professional and consistent manner, maintaining confidentiality for the donor and guaranteeing security, integrity, and control of the specimen.

Powell completed the DATIA program in St. Petersburg, FL, in October 2010.
